Seniors— the torchlight

Seniors, bearing the flaming torch of leadership, set afire the glowing tinderbox of activity offered by high school life. Kindling the fire that glows into a flaming inferno of spirit, the Class of '69 relishes inner school and intramural rivalry. Aglow with the challenge, burning at the prospect of victory, seniors encompass the school with enthusiasm.

Underclassmen— the stage lights

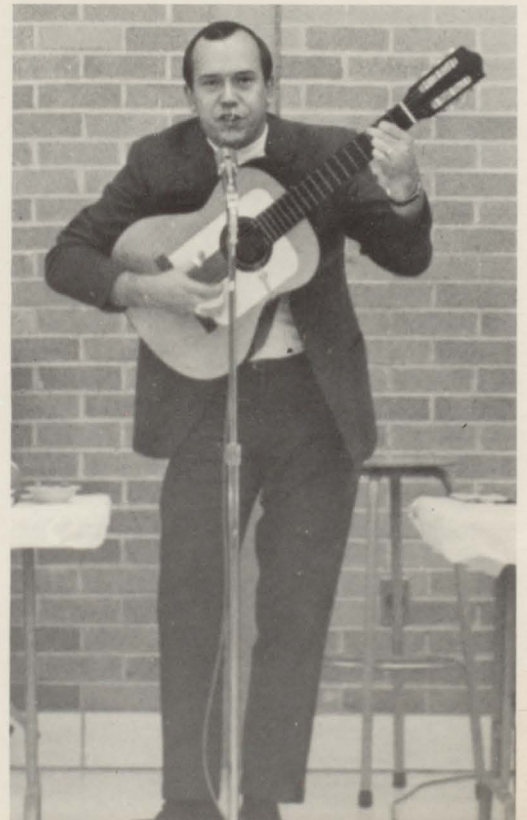

Brightening the scene of everyday school life with their ambition, ingenuity, resourcefulness, and spirit, the underclassmen have proven to be the peppy pillar of our school. Aglow with the excitement of high school life, the underclassmen have followed Northern traditions enthusiastically and have proven to be creative and ingenious in their lightheartedness. Accepting Northern as a great part of their lives, underclassmen have been caught up and involved in their school's activities. They listen, they learn, they engage in, and they compete, and they lighten the stage set that is called school.

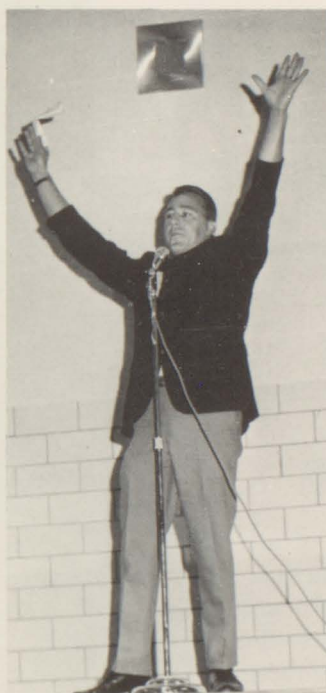

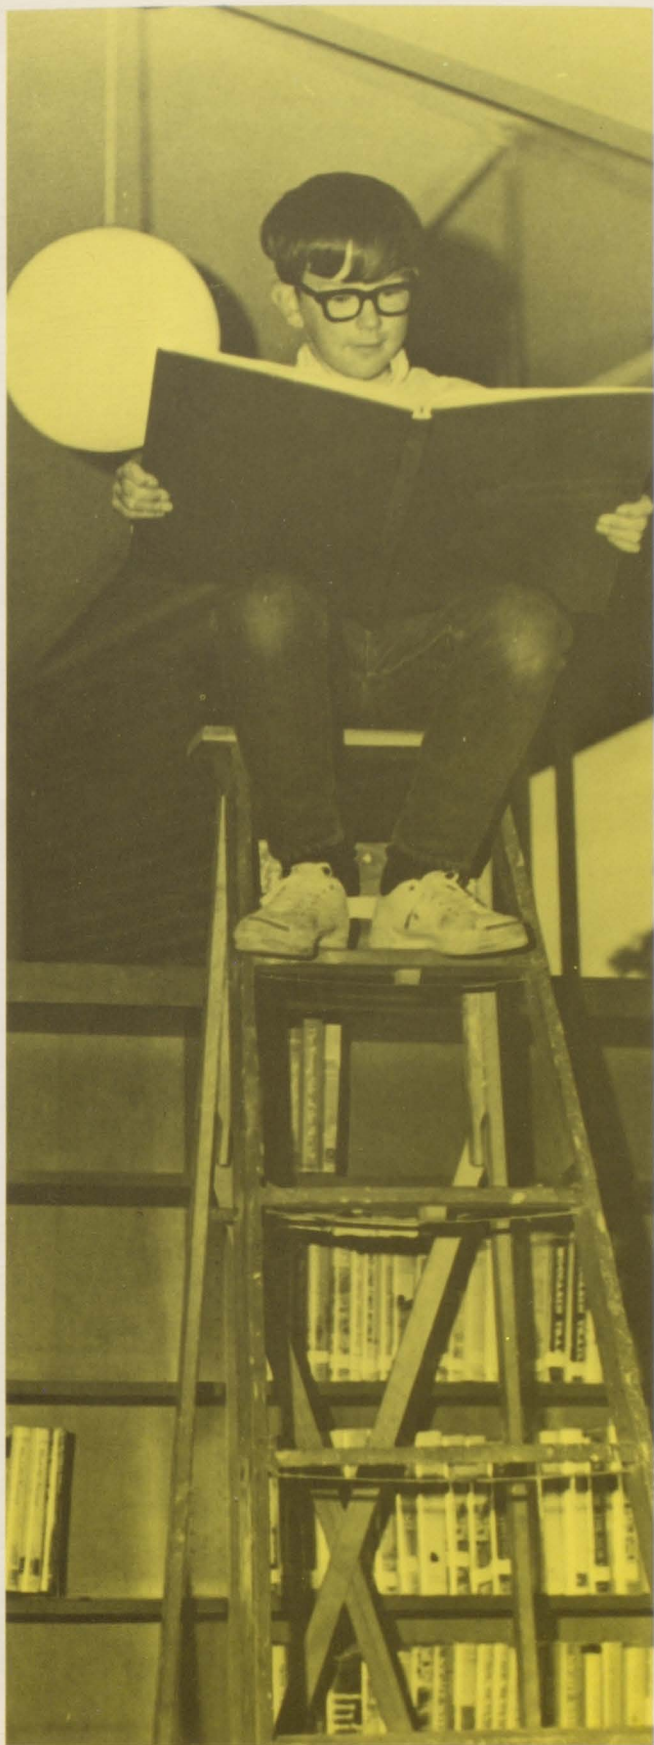

Academics the searchlight

Inquisitively exploring the limitless realm of knowledge, Northern students pursue an education assisted by some of the best facilities in the state. Teachers direct our exploratory venture into the world of academics with understanding and encouragement. They realize the needs our education must fill and carefully mold their teaching material to fit those needs. With the guiding light of a concerned faculty and the storehouse of knowledge available from well equipped and accurate facilities, Northern students travel the corridors of success.

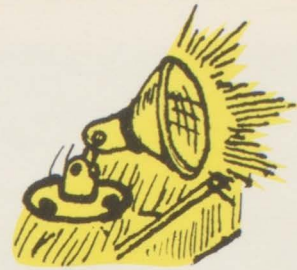

Sports— the highlights

Sports, the most radiant of all of the Northern Lights, emits flashes of the brightest innerschool unity and highest pride producing harmony of school and student. With the encouragement of our cheerleaders, those sparks that ignite the fire of enthusiasm, school spirit climbs to the zenith at the climax of our sports events, and, whether in victory or defeat, Northern's spirit for sports still runs high.

Student life— the spotlight

Student life, the spotlight that illuminates a student's special interests and brightens his school curriculum. In a sunburst variety of colorful activities, the student can express himself creatively and sensitively or impulsively and passionately. Only in extracurricular activities has the student such a complete choice of what he can do, and what he cares to do. He chooses what is right for him, and actively pursues his desires and goals, and sets a pattern for his future.

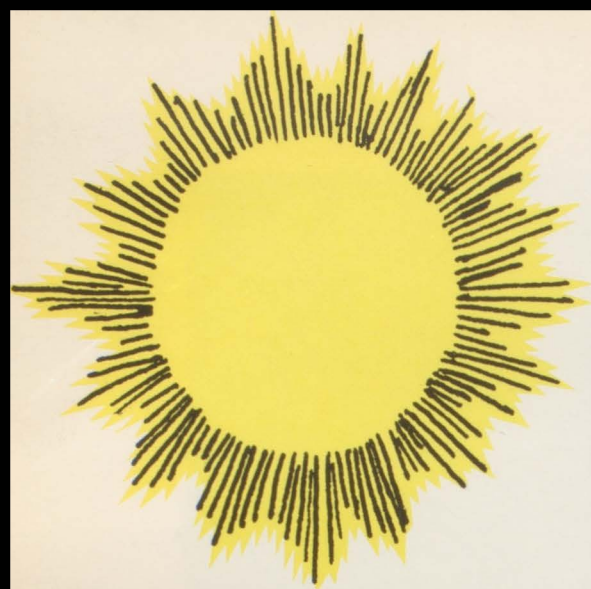

Port Huron— a glowing city

Port Huron's bright city lights reflect the warmly glowing attitude of our town. Retaining the best of our historic past and merging it with the spontaneous present, Port Huron is progressively improving. Port Huron swells with activity and each thrust towards a better community encourages another. The new Clara E. McKenzie Library, our own modern Northern High School, the beautiful public library recently completed, the much needed new wing to Port Huron Hospital, the Museum of Arts and History in the old library building, and the excellent programs initiated at the YMCA, all reflect Port Huron's increasing emphasis on providing meaningful additions to our town's cultural, economic, social, and educational growth. Through the efforts of a generous and concerned community, Port Huron is becoming the progressive and vital city of the future.

There's a place in the Sun . . .

For us, there will always be a season warmed by rays emitted from the sun; a season of knowledge and understanding, a season of friendship and hope. Most important is the season of spirit, which is the very foundation which Northern is built upon. For all of us, there is a time and purpose to be sought. If a light should appear faint and not within our grasp, and should memories fail, this purpose will always bind us together. Our common bond will be built upon a desire to strive for what appears unattainable, to carry the heavy load when others find it burdensome, and to search for truth. Because of the high standards we have set as patriots of Port Huron Northern High School, it is inevitable that each of us shall find his place in the sun.

Dr. Degrow watches the hustling Junior Varsity football team of which his son Dan is a member.

Dr. Gerald S. DeGrow Superintendent

Dr. Gerald S. DeGrow's immediate interest as Superintendent of the Port Huron Area School District is that of carrying out Board policy in prompting the best education and the best possible facilities for the public school students. He also acts as coordinator between the various schools when problems arise.

After receiving the Doctor of Education Degree in General School Administration from the University of Michigan in 1964, Dr. DeGrow was appointed Superintendent here. He is a member of the Board of Directors of the Michigan Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development and the American Association of School Administration.

Board of Education—area policy makers

The Port Huron Area School District Board of Education members meet regularly to discuss school policies for the entire school district. They decide upon business items concerning all of the Port Huron Area public schools. Approving new personnel, appropriations of the budget, and expenditures, are some of the time consuming jobs the Board must handle. This past fall the Board made it possible for our school parking lot to be black topped along with the paving of four other area schools.

A day in the life of James E. Overly

Mr. James E. Overly is dedicated to the idea of making Northern shine brightly above other high schools. Because of the many student accomplishments, the able faculty, and the qualified administrators, he is sure of reaching this goal.

Mr. Overly, a Michigan State University graduate, began his career in Grass Lake, Michigan, where he taught and served as principal for ten years. Since being appointed Northern's first principal in September 1964, his chief concern has been that of co-ordinating a well-balanced curriculum with available teachers and classroom space. Being the fine administrator that he is, he handles a wide range of jobs, from supervising scheduling and budgeting to controlling all activities and disciplining.

Because of his dedication and his understanding, Mr. Overly is seen by students and faculty as a friend and a man to be proud of.

Mr. Raymond Morehead—Assistant principal

Mr. Raymond Morehead, assistant principal, is proud of Northern!!! Having seen the class of '69 become the first complete four-year graduating class, he can reflect on the success that Northern has gained. He sees these four years as a period of growth and a time of strong development. He sights the increase of spirit due to more success in athletics, the strong interest shown by groups and organizations, and a general feeling of goodwill among the people at Northern. Mr. Morehead attributes all our success to the students themselves, who he considers a great bunch of kids that seem set apart from others he has known. He praises Northern students for their abilities to be strong individuals as well as sturdy cooperative groups.

Who should know more about the students than the man who regulates all school activity and comes in contact with every group and organization in the entire school? He is also responsible for student scheduling, special announcements, and recording student report cards.

ABOVE: Yearbook staffer Susan McKernan obtains a list of scheduled activities from Mr. Morehead for use and planning the Student Life section.
RIGHT: Mr. Morehead serves as a judge for the bubble gum blowing contest at the Mardi Gras assembly.

Office personnel—always there to serve you

"Efficient" is the best word to use to describe the two hardworking secretaries in the main office: Mrs. Clara Wellman and Mrs. Velma Shepherd. In Addition to her duties as Mr. Overly's personal secretary, Mrs. Wellman handles the detailed money matters concerning payroll information for non-certified personnel and school organizational finances. She also keeps track of teacher absences and substitute teachers reports. Mrs. Shepherd, Mr. Morehead's secretary, checks business accounts of the Internal Accounting Record of the school.

Marilyn Thayer, a co-op student, operates the Book and Supply Store providing a convenient service for students and teachers.

With a cheery smile, Marilyn Thayer stands ready to serve Supply Store customers.

Mrs. Velma Shepherd uses her favorite handy-dandy gadget to roll coins received in lunchtime potato chip sales.

Mrs. Clara Wellman records cancelled checks to keep accurate accounts of all organizational treasuries.

Cooks ease gnawing hungers

Those hunger-causing aromas that can be smelled in the halls every morning are undoubtedly produced by the hard-working cooking staff. Beginning early in the morning, the staff, directed by Mrs. Mildred Green, prepares and serves over 1600 lunches, not only for Northern, but 10 other area schools.

The cooks prepare hardy plate lunches as well as sandwiches, rolls, cookies, and salads. Several cooks also maintain the milk and ice cream lines. Besides their regular cooking tasks, they are often asked to serve dinners for sports banquets and other special events.

Custodians keep school in tip top shape

Working in two shifts, the custodial staff labors diligently to keep the school grounds and building looking beautiful. Not only do they perform daily jobs of maintenance but also handle the minor crises of repair jobs which arise. Mr. Burton Paul, chief custodian, and his staff are always willing to help special groups in preparing and setting up for various activities such as dances, parties, athletic events and programs.

These men and women deserve a special thanks for the somewhat endless work they do. Working long hours at night and during vacations, they provide us with clean and healthy surroundings.

English speaks for itself

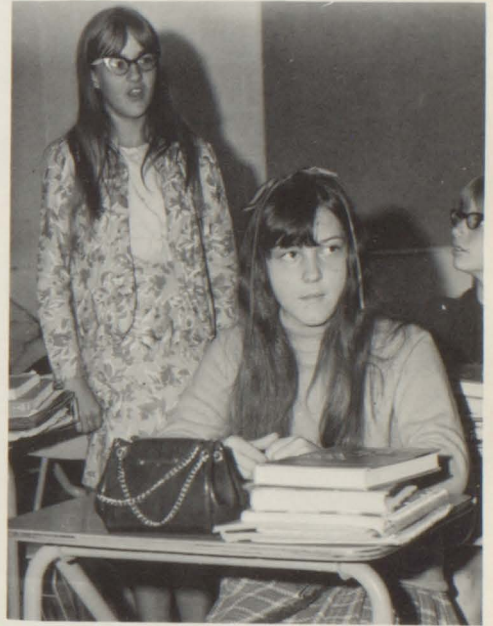

Infinitives, prepositions, gerunds, transitive sentences, and past tense verbs—is that all there is to English? No! Fortunately. Everyone who has participated in any of the English courses offered here at Northern knows this.

Literature, which is a major part of the course, offers the reader an escape to an entirely different world. It might be one of suspense, fantasy, poetry, or just plain facts. Regardless, as one reads fine literature, he not only is entertained, but he is introduced into the ideas of another time, people, and culture. Two main objectives of a literature course are: to develop a sensitivity and appreciation of fine literature; and to develop a lifelong interest in reading.

Two other important aspects of English are speech and journalism. In both, the major objective is to acquire an ability to communicate clearly and well—whether it be by speech or writing.

So, even though grammar is necessary, there are many other important realms of English waiting to be explored.

The main source of communication is based upon language. Included in the Language Department are four years of Spanish, four years of Latin, three years of French, and two years of German. Each of the four languages offered deal with grammar, composition, and conversational techniques. Students are also greatly aided by Northern's extensive language laboratory.

The language lab puts students in touch with music and singing, as well as the language itself. The student is truly benefited by the use of the lab.

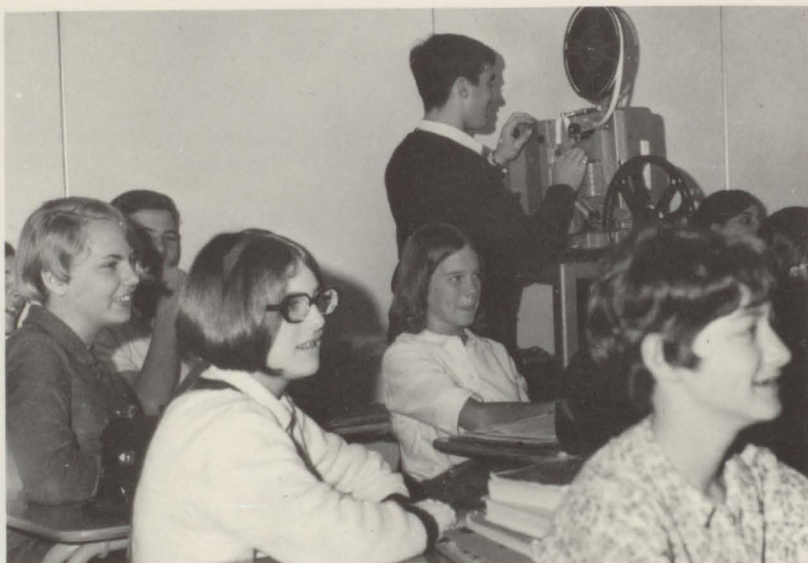

Lost in past and involved in present

Mr. Clint Mosher, a new teacher this year, tries to stress an important point to his second hour Civics class.

The use of maps is an essential tool in the study of Civics. Deborah Tomchuk enlightens the students in Mr. Gary Young's second hour class in pointing out Poland.

LEFT: Mark Stevens displays a Mexican good luck charm, "The Eyes of God", to Miss Mildred Rush's second hour Civics class.

BELOW: Students study diligently in Mr. Robert Clark's third hour American History class.

Is there anything more fascinating than the study of man? To trace his development through progressive decades while delving into his achievements and retrogressions is perhaps the best yardstick with which to measure our astounding naked ape and his world today. By reconstructing the rise and fall of great civilizations of an uncomprehendable aggregation of years past, we can link ourselves to cultures that are now nonexistent and whose ways and means of living have diminished with the years. With this study of the past, we can relate better to our own highly complex and perplexing world of today, and can better define our own roles in our contemporary life. We can put perspective into our own values in life and can travel the roads of life aided by the rearview mirror of history.

Journey into the world of science

Science is very important in the world today, and through the science courses offered here, students are able to begin the exploration of this vast field.

A science course promotes many interesting activities, such as chemistry projects, reports, and biology dissections.

In many cases, a science course has provided the introduction to a future career or profession. In all cases, each student who has participated in a science course has become a richer person because he better understands and appreciates the mysteries of the world around him.

ABOVE: Observing the weather board are Ross Rogers and Mr. Walter Lyszak. The weather is one of the many subjects studied in general science.

Math is the angle toward success

ABOVE: The study of such subjects as the relation of triangles to spheres or the formula for finding the circumference of a circle requires deep concentration in Miss Mary Neil's Geometry I and II class. (AT)

BELOW: Dawn Sassenella can't quite decide whether the cone or the cylinder is larger in Mrs. Henrietta Hobb's first-year Geometry class.

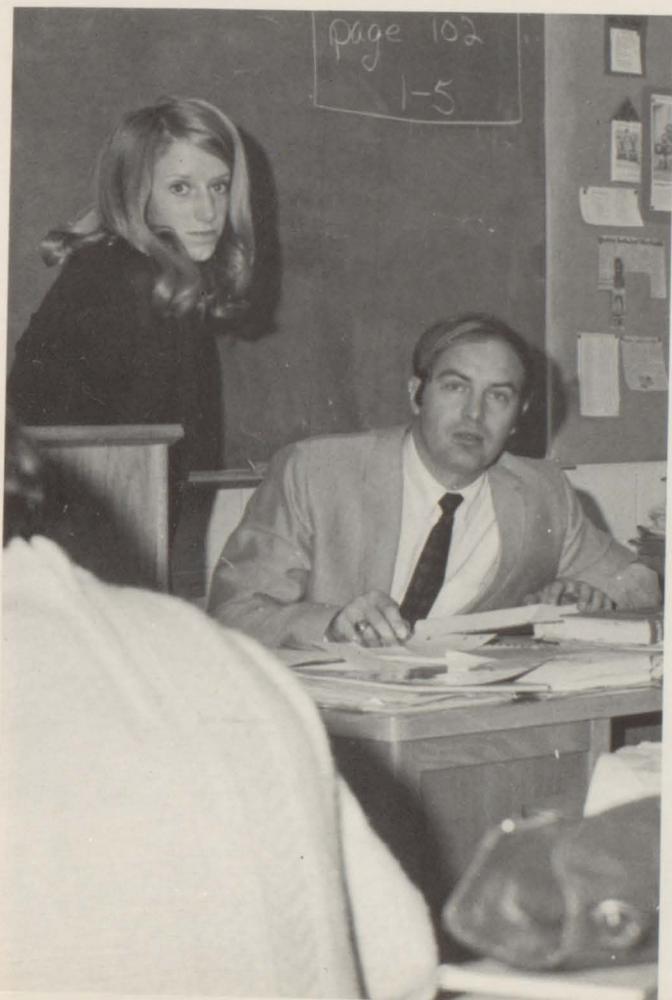

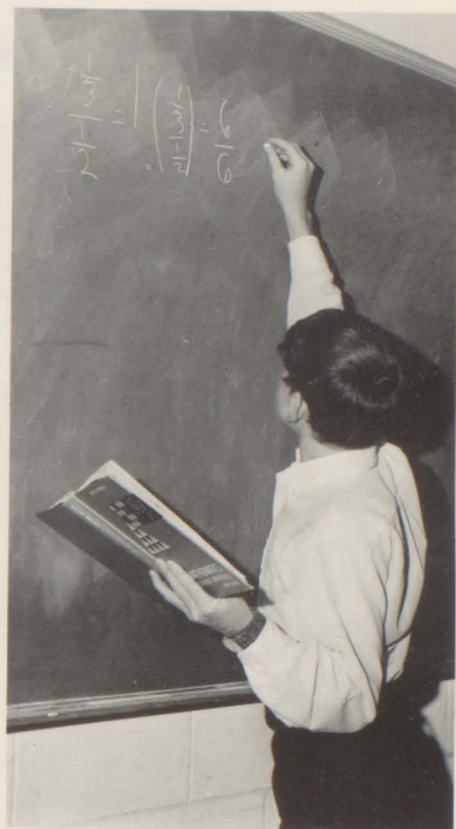

BELOW RIGHT: "Over three spaces and down two" is a common murmur heard in Mr. Wayne Hustoff's Algebra I and II class, as John Wilmarth demonstrates the technique of graphing.

The intelligent use and manipulation of mathematics today plays a great role in the successes of our advancing world. Our strides forward in science are basically founded on mathematical principles.

Because of the wide range of math courses offered here at Northern, students are able to advance to different levels—from learning the fundamentals and practical applications of arithmetic to compiling and understanding statistical data. However, in all of these courses, one important objective is to encourage all students to have a genuine interest in mathematics.

ABOVE LEFT: Sometimes "two heads are better than one" for solving a difficult problem in Mr. Stanley Renner's Algebra 3 and 4 class.

LEFT: Mr. Stanley Renner seems to be rather startled as his attention is drawn away from Algebra to being photogenic.

BELOW: Bonnie Reed shows that independent thinking is an important key to solving a difficult problem in Mr. Tex Durand's Practical Math class.

Students find experience an excellent teacher

The Cooperative Education Program at Port Huron Northern High had over 140 students enrolled this year. The three major areas of employment were in distribution, trade and industrial, and office occupation areas. Students in each of these areas receive particular training on the job and they also receive technical background training in the classroom.

Distribution students (people involved with retail, wholesale and service selling) take business courses related to their field of work such as the Co-op related classes, retailing or general business.

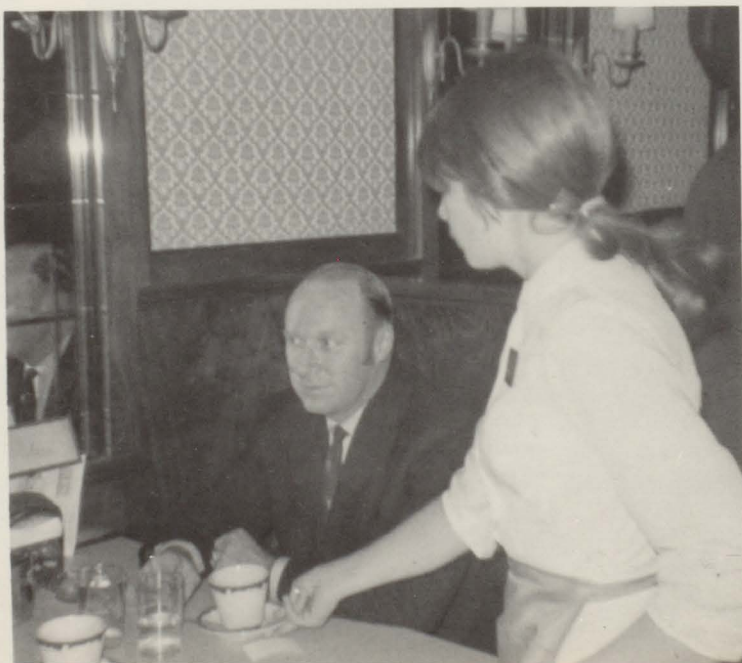

The objective of the Cooperative Program is to give the student an opportunity to gain work experience while he is still in school. As a result he can earn and save or train for full-time employment after graduation.

BELOW: As a waitress at Diana's, Kathleen Carpenter has a chance to practice public relations.

On the road to (driving) success!

Drivers Education provides the student with the fundamentals and driving experience he needs to become a successful driver. The first part of the course is a four to six week period of instruction in the procedures of driving through the use of a textbook. After the completion of this portion of the course, what is learned is put to the test by actual road driving in a dual-operated car accompanied by either one of the instructors, Mr. William Morrison or Mr. Bernard Palmateer.

Added "know-how" is gained through the use of the simulator, a large trailer in which are many actual-size models of an automobile instrument panel, steering column, and accelerator and brake pedals.

Industrial Arts . . . products, processes

ABOVE: In general shop students learn woodworking and metal craft which are valuable vocational skills.

LEFT: "What do I do next?" asks Larry Andrews after disassembling the front suspension system of this car in his afternoon trade auto class.

and tools of industry

The industrial education program at Northern is open to all students. Industrial arts, primarily an exploratory type situation, is generally taken by those interested in general consumer knowledge, designing, engineering, pre-vocational experience etc. Vocational areas such as electronics, drafting, and auto mechanics are offered for those seeking jobs after graduation in some specific area, or for those going into further technical education.

Northern has a fine curriculum offering: general shop, advanced woods and metals, power mechanics, mechanical drawing, advanced drafting (machine and architectural), electronics, trade auto, and radio and T.V. servicing.

Art refreshes a weary imagination

RIGHT: Working on her pottery in Mrs. Carol Jinbo's advanced crafts class is Karen Hill.

BELOW RIGHT: As Karen Doyle poses, Trudy Kamendat sketches a free hand work of the human body.

Arts and Crafts are among the most creative courses offered to the students of Northern. Students are given the opportunity to create with their hands that which exists in their minds. These courses teach students the appreciation of art by placing them in contact with it. Through these courses, students are able to put their skills and imagination to use and are given the opportunity to display their work in an annual spring art show.

Students prepare for future home lives

ABOVE: "That's 'finger lickin' good'," says Rebecca Jefferson as she samples a molded salad made in Mrs. Carmen Mahla's Advanced Foods class.

RIGHT: Miss Donna Galoit explains to students how to arrange a pattern in preparation for sewing a dress in her second-hour Clothing 1 and 2 class.

BELOW RIGHT: In Mrs. Catherine Brown's Home and Family Living course, such topics as money management, marriage, and personal appearance are discussed as an insight into the responsibilities of adulthood.

One of the main goals of the Home Economics Department is to develop an increased understanding and broader interest in assuming responsibilities for improvement of home and family life. Whether in foods or clothing class, students gain experience in the fundamentals of adulthood. Through the sewing of garments or the cooking of assorted confections, girls are given a chance to test their own skills. Subjects which are of special interest to teens such as personality, babysitting, and personal appearance are also covered. During the Christmas season, girls in the second-year sewing classes make clothing for needy children from scraps of material saved from projects previously completed. The Home and Family Living course offered to seniors gives a "bird's eye view" of the responsibilities of tomorrow's world.

BOTTOM RIGHT: Taping a program for the future use in his classes is Mr. Joseph Airtene.

Music is a communication all its own. It has something to impart to its listener—whether it be joy, sorrow, exaltation, or serenity. Music has the potential to make a person a fuller, more enriched individual and students are offered the opportunity to receive this through the choral classes offered at Northern.

There are now four different choral groups; Girls Glee Club, Ninth Grade Chorus, Festival Choir, and A Cappella Choir. Each group participates in school assemblies and a special Spring concert in May.

A select ensemble is chosen from both the Girls Glee Club and A Cappella Choir, the latter performing at various community functions.

A highlight of this year is the A Cappella Choir's public performance of the Schubert Mass in G accompanied by the International Symphony Orchestra in Port Huron and Sarnia.

A library—a golden treasury of thoughts

MIDDLE RIGHT: Rebecca Hurst shows that height has its advantages as Dawn Sassanella stretches to find a book in the card catalog.

BELOW: The quiet atmosphere of the library provides an ideal place for deep concentration on the day's studies.

Because of its various functions, Northern's library may be more accurately termed an instructional material center. Beside having 11,686 books available to students for research and reading, the library also offers a wide selection of current magazines, newspapers, college catalogs, and vocational booklets. Another important function of the library is the distribution of other instructional media, such as: films, strip-films, slides, maps, phonograph records, and all audio-visual machinery. Microfilm is now available to students and proves to be very useful in research, offering complete copies of fourteen different magazines dating from 1960.

Shh . . . Efficiency's busy here!

Business courses offer students the opportunity to acquire a basic business education, provide for the experience needed for a future vocation, and contribute to the general student's needs. How else can you learn to type those term papers or take precise notes?

For those interested in a future business vocation, instruction is offered and skill acquired in typing, shorthand, and the use of different office machines. Students also learn the personal qualities and attitudes which are necessary for successful clerical workers.

Relax—exercise and fun

Physical education here at Northern is not merely an exercise class. Through the wide variety of sports and activities engaged in during the school year, two main objectives are stressed. First, friendship and sociability are encouraged through the cooperation in all activities, such as basketball, field hockey, and soccer. Secondly, individual sports such as golf and tennis, are introduced. The instruction in the basic skills of these sports forms a foundation for carrying over these skills into adult life, thus enabling the adult to gain profitable exercise during leisure time.

ABOVE LEFT: That little bit of extra "umph" is needed when executing pull-ups, as James Davis seems to realize in Mr. Robert Elliot's Boys Physical Education class.

ABOVE: As the basketball flies through the air, both teams watch anxiously to see if it will sink through the hoop while playing basketball in Girls physical Education class.

BELOW RIGHT: Everyone has their own style when doing push-ups as can be clearly seen in Mr. James Bates Boys Physical Education class.

Student Life

A new time, a new place, a new day,

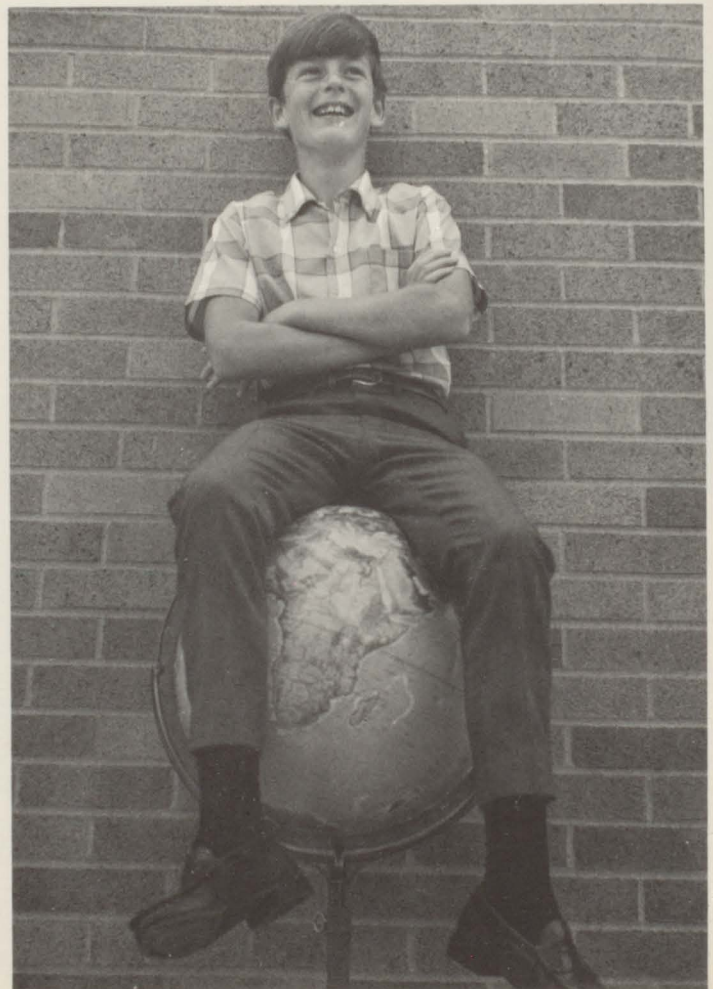

The life of a student is saturated with changes. These changes constitute new experiences which in turn lead to a feeling of accomplishment and fulfillment. Such are the instances when one faces a new year at school, one in which new goals will be set, new places will be found and new faces will be met. All of these will be new in the sense that they will have changed from what they once were. As time progresses things are seen in a new light.

A student attempts to find this freshness in every phase of his high school life. He wants to add to his collection of experiences and believe that he has made himself a rare and worthy individual.

There are times when he senses a beginning, shares the excitement of a crowd, appreciates a smiling face, or places himself above whatever forces might be working against him.

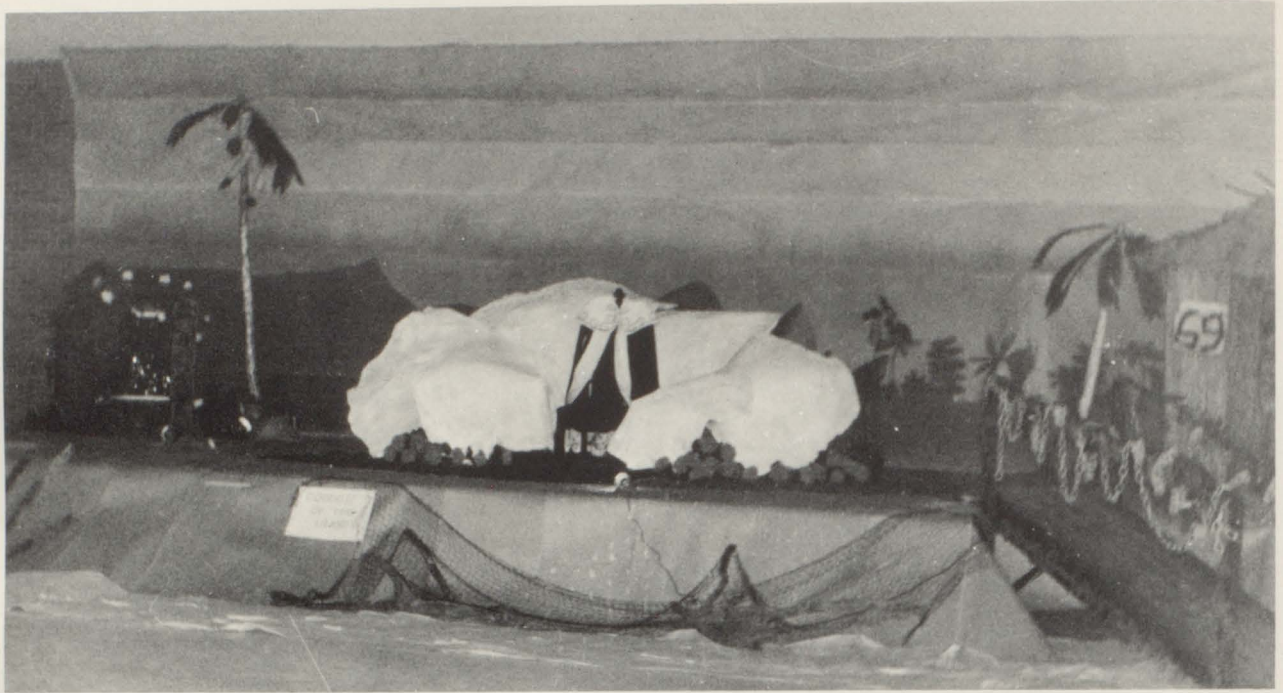

It is important, however, that it be remembered that there is always a time in a student's life.

PHN decks its halls with Christmas spirit

The Christmas season finds the halls of Northern filled with the holiday spirit. The students show their enthusiasm by turning in an overwhelming total of 16,386 cans in the canned food drive, exceeding the goal set by Student Council by over 7,000 cans. Sophomores take top honors with a turn in of 5,840 cans.

The A Capella Choir and Honors Band set the mood and fill Northern's gym with sacred and secular music at the Christmas assembly.

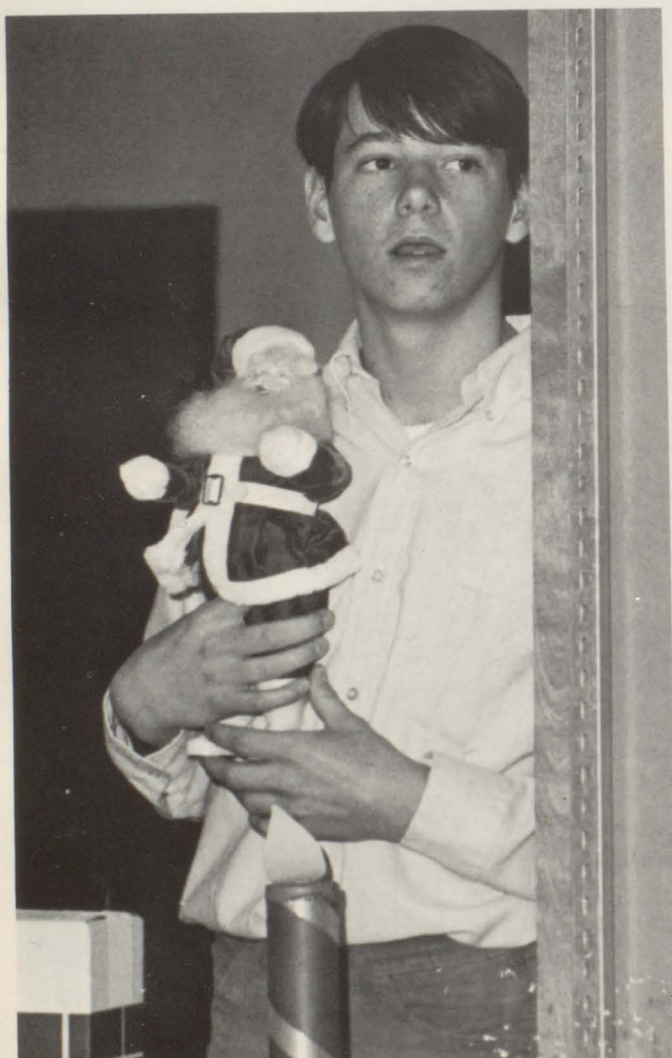

All in all, the Huskies promote the Christmas spirit by a tremendous display of giving and sharing.

In one sense there is no death. The life of a soul on earth lasts beyond his departure. You will always feel that life touching yours, that voice speaking to you, that spirit looking out of other eyes, talking to you in the familiar things he touched, worked with, loved as familiar friends. He lives on in your life and in the lives of all others that knew him.

ABOVE: Thomas Phare diligently counts the strands of his tassel, making sure there are sixty-nine.

BELOW: At marching practice, Principal James Overly gives his Seniors last minute instructions on approaching commencement activities.

As the end of their high school career draws near, Seniors' thoughts naturally turn to the past. They remember . . .

. . . the apprehension they felt as they walked up the sidewalk that first day.

. . . the pride in knowing that they would be the first class to attend Northern for four full years.

. . . the triumph they knew when they defeated the upperclassmen to win Northern's first magazine sale.

They recall . . .

. . . the gain of confidence as they returned as silly Sophomores.

. . . the disappointment of having to settle for second place in the Mardi Gras.

They couldn't possibly forget . . .

. . . the thrill of winning the Mardi Grass barrel.

. . . the warm glow of attending their very own Junior Prom, "Three Coins in a Fountain".

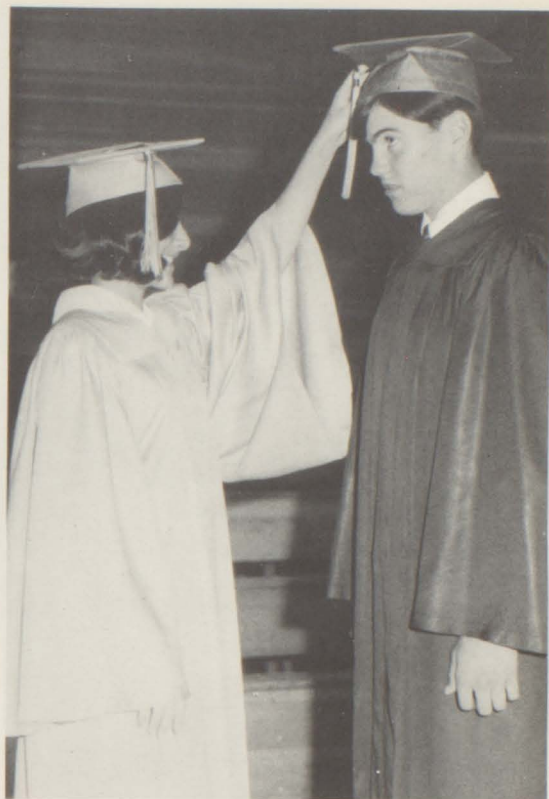

They remember . . .

. . . the joy of watching "their" Mardi Gras queen being crowned.

. . . the terrible upset of placing third in the canned food drive.

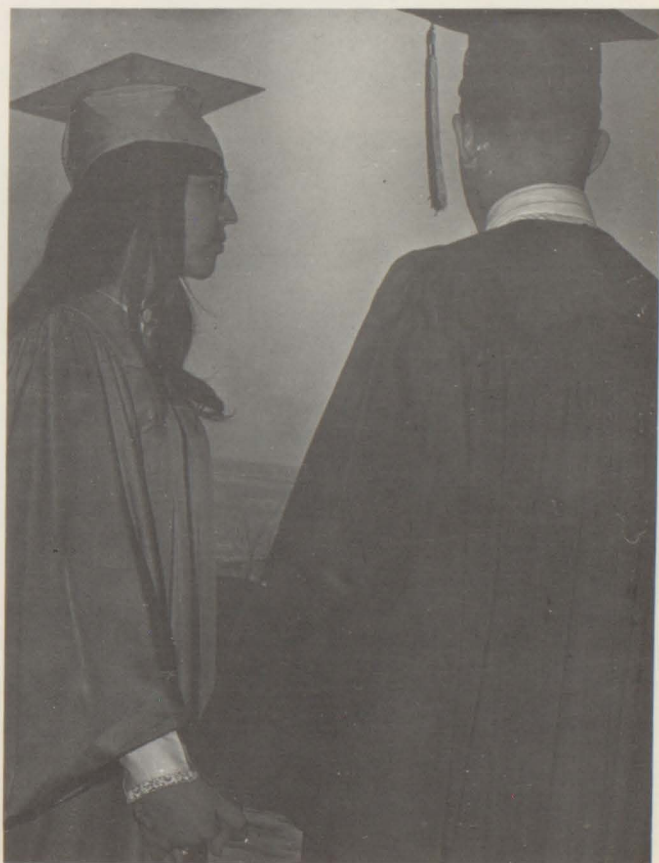

. . . the absolute feeling of superiority when they won the magazine sale for the fourth straight year.

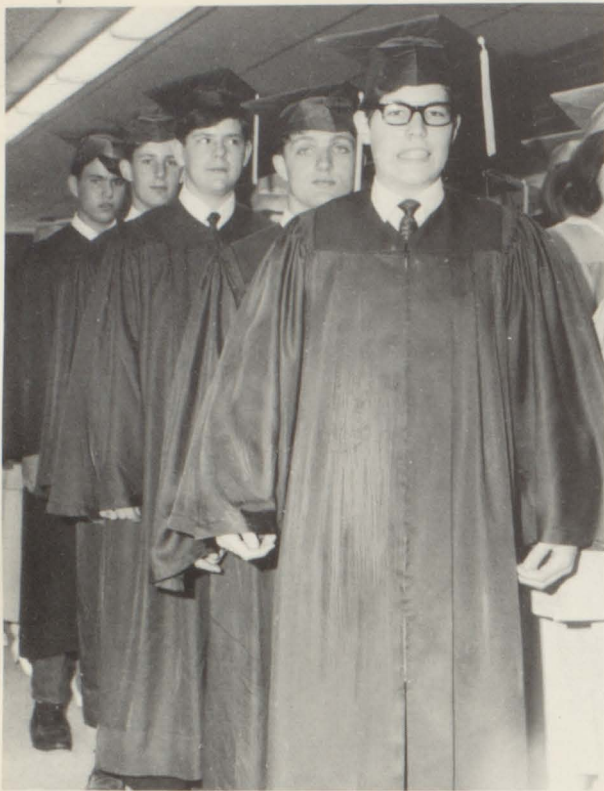

Then before they can realize it, it's over; the sadness of the Senior Assembly, the excitement of the prom and the "Y" party, the Melancholy of graduation day. They find the door to their old life closing, as the door to a new life opens.

"Isn't it right yet?" asks Richard Reuter as Deborah Touma straightens his tassel.

Seniors reach the crossroads of life

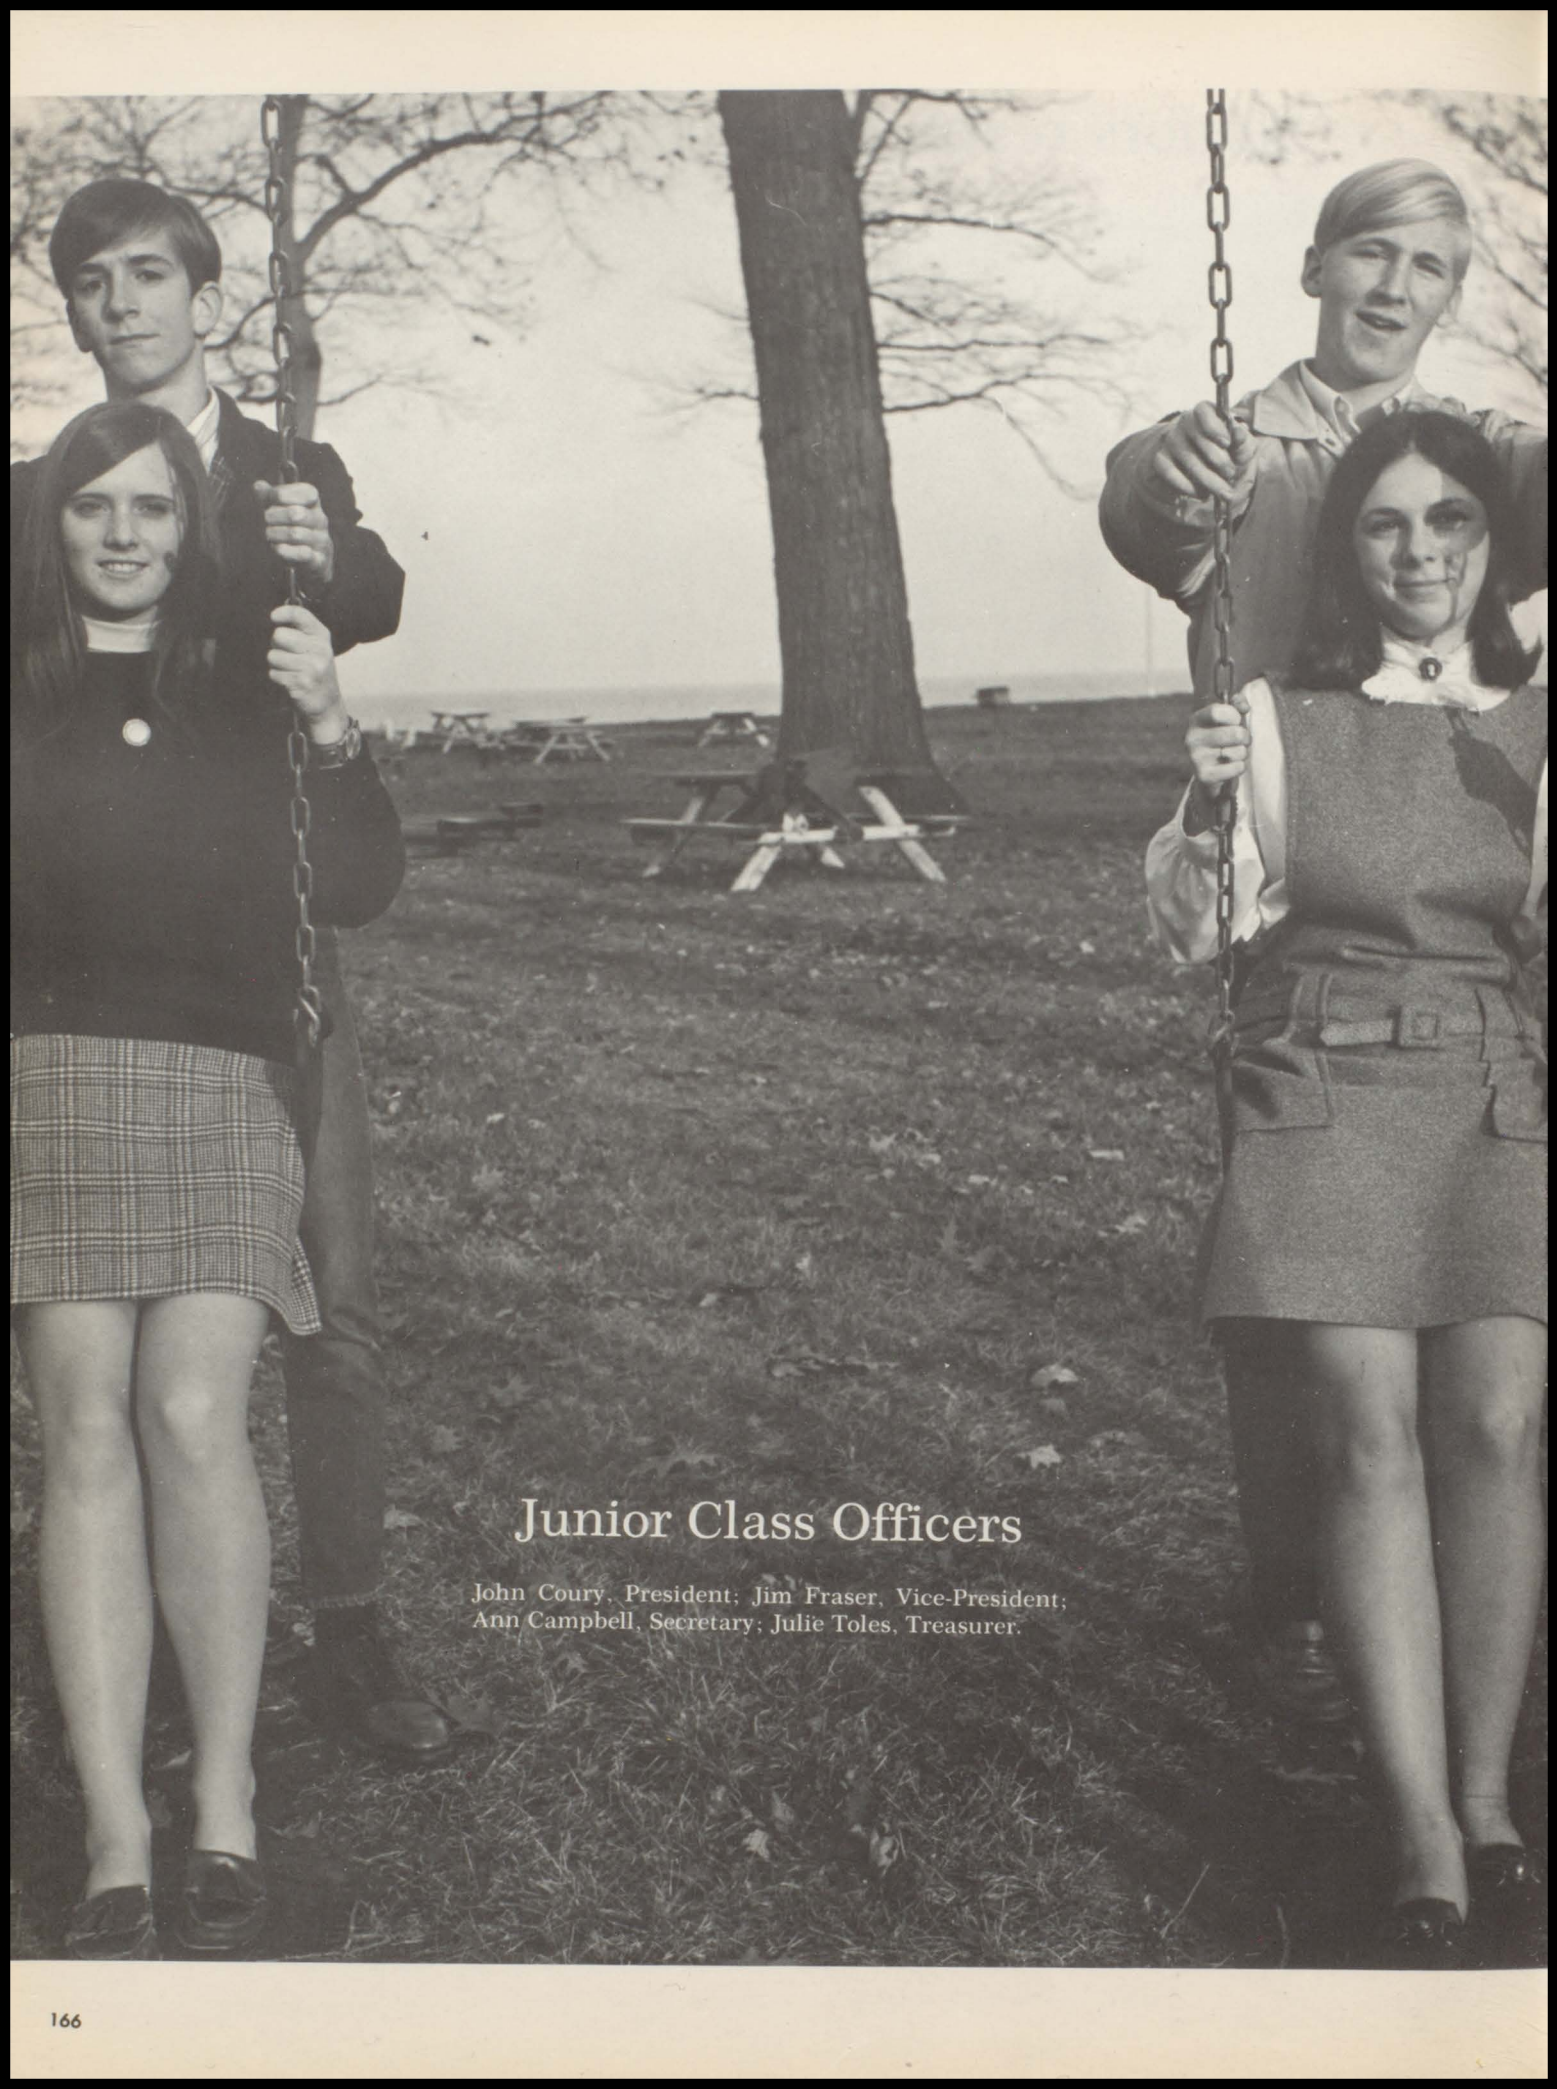

ABOVE: Nostalgic thoughts of the past four years bring tears to the eyes of these Senior girls. BELOW: There are no backward glances for these Seniors as they look to the future and all it holds.

No man is an island, entire of itself; every man is a piece of the continent, a part of the main.

If a clod be washed away by the sea, Europe is the less.
Any man's death diminishes me, because I am involved in mankind, and therefore never send to know for whom the bell tolls; it tolls for thee.

John Donne

Juniors swing out for another great year

ABOVE: The 11th grade center is run smoothly and efficiently under the guidance and supervision of Mr. Donald Wendling, 11th grade Dean.

MIDDLE: Mrs. Ruby Goodrich, 11th grade Counselor; starts another day ready to advise and counsel those desiring it.

LEFT: Mrs. Jean Preninger, 11th grade Secretary; as she listens to one of the many excuses given for student absences.

The victorious winners of the Mardi Gras barrel have shown energy, enthusiasm and spirit which has made them a place at Northern. They have thrown their wholehearted support into all Northern activities.

Through their experiences and knowledge they will create a new and exciting Senior Class.

BELOW: 11th Grade Steering Committee—BOTTOM ROW: Carol Rowe, Randall Burgett, Andrea Falk, Charles Lawrence, Dorian Connolly, Marilyn Thayer, Gary Dennis,

Freshmen Class Officers

Top to Bottom: John Tisdell, Treasurer; Mary Mosher, Secretary; Howard McFadden, Vice-President; and Sandra Campbell, President.

Freshmen on top with largest enrollment ever—"545"!!

Mr. William Pierce, 9th grade dean; gets into the swing of things at one of Northern's pep assemblies.

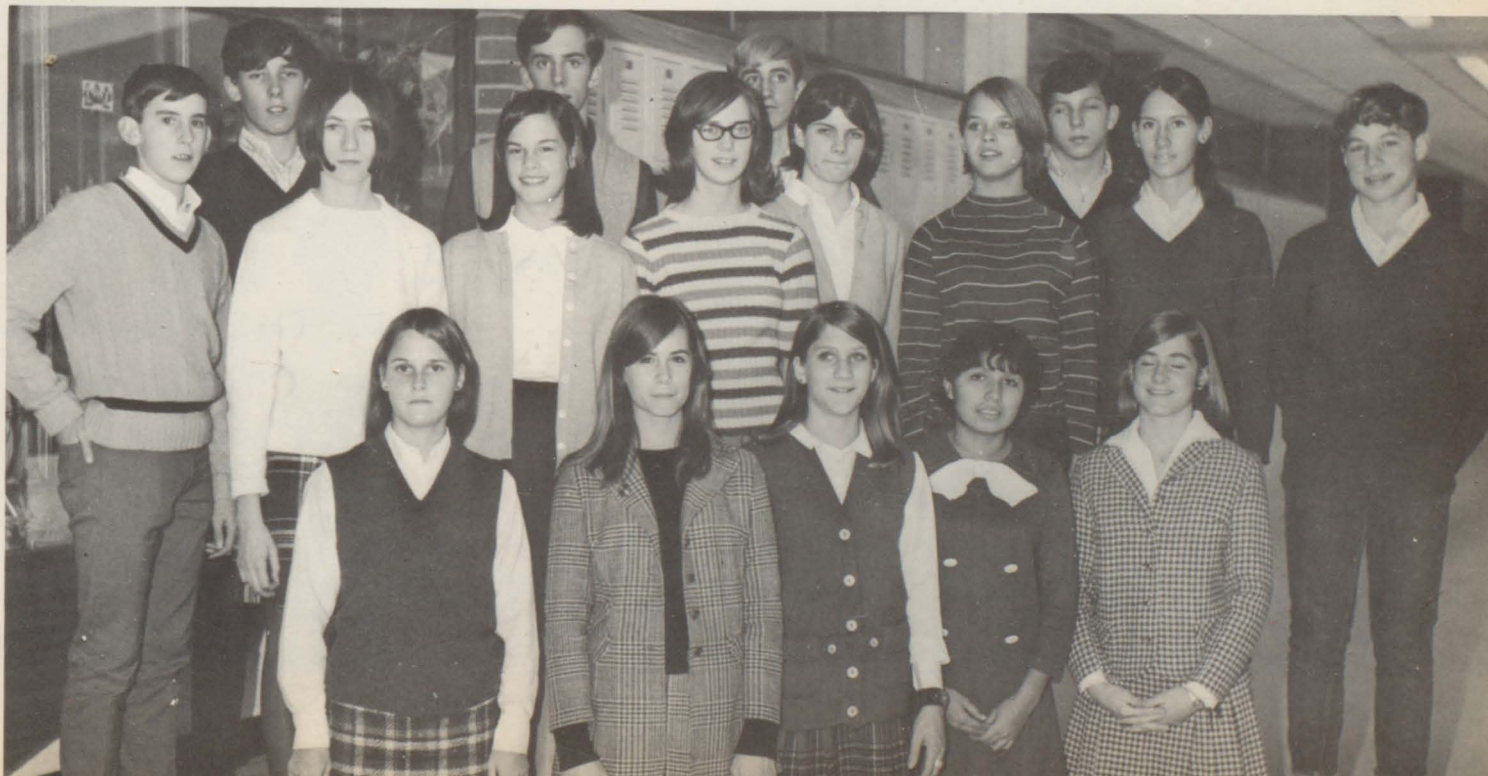

Spirit, and willingness to learn, have earned the Freshmen a place in Northern's halls. With the accent on determination, vitality and eagerness, the Freshmen prove how well they adjust to high school life. Desiring to be part of high school activity, they put forth every effort to make this and their remaining years at Northern the most rewarding years of their life.

Mrs. Jean Wright, secretary and Miss Pauline Lackie, counselor look over the daily attendance sheet.

9th grade Steering Committee members: Kneeling: Andrea Thomas, Pamela Richards, Wendy Krenke, Maria Gonzales, Mary Mosher. Standing: John Tisdell, Mark Setter, Diane Parsons, Eve Lewis, Thomas Coury, Linda Melms, Richard Whipple, Treasure House, Wendy Krenke, Howard McFadden, Sandra Campbell, and Robert Barss.

NOW THEY ARE GONE

And to those that knew them,
And to those that loved them,
Things that were words before
Are more than words.

Loyalty, Pride
Courage, Humor
Friendship——
These are the weapons
They used til they died.
Love gives life meaning,

In a look, in a breath,
But never so truly,
Or deeply as death.

On this final page of the Spirit of '69 I wish to express my gratitude to those indirectly responsible for the publication of this book: the Faculty, the Administrators, the Office Personnel, the Custodians, the Advertisers, and the Student Body.

I personally want to thank my brother, Doug, for all the extra work he did as head photographer, Leanne Millard, my consultant, and for her art contributions which included the cover design, Derry Dunn for his art work, Diane Dell, Business Manager, Mrs. Daphne Rantanen's advanced typing class, and Mr. Larry Smith, advisor.

My sincerest appreciation is extended to the Spirit staff members for the tremendous amount of time and effort they put forth to make this book a success, and to Mr. Terry Howard, our helpful representative from Inter-Collegiate Press.

I hope in the future as you look back through these time-worn pages many bright memories of the year 1969 will be brought to mind, and that through your endeavors in the years to come you will find your place in the sun.

Ledee Rantanen
